Words from Their Excellencies

To the Glorious Populace of Atenveldt,

In the days of Charlemagne, about 1200 years ago, his loyal vassal, Roland, did gather twelve great heroes to go to battle for his liege whenever the necessity arose. This corps d'elite, as it was often called was known by many names, including the Twelve Paladins. So does the Baron of Atenveldt, Sir Nudd, seeks twelve such warriors to lead his own troops whenever our Crown has need.

To identify these noble leaders of men, the Baron of Atenveldt will hold twelve tournaments throughout the year. The lists shall be open to all comers, from far and near, be they members of the Chivalry or no. The victor of each list shall be known as the Baron's Paladin. Victors may compete in each subsequent tournament and earn largess as they go, but shall only receive the accolade once. The highest placing combatant that has not already achieved this standing will be named Paladin. In this fashion, all warriors must be ready and willing to fight all other warriors in the lists. At the end of the twelfth month, the Grand Paladin, who has won the largest number of tournaments, shall be named and honored.

In her gentle wisdom, Baroness Emelyn noted that a great warrior is stronger when fighting for the honor of another. Therefor, Their Excellencies will require that each combatant will fight for a companion worthy of this honor. The Paladin will be given a token with which to gift that source of inspiration. At the end of the twelfth tournament, the Grand Paladin shall be accompanied by the Grand Paladin's Companion.

Likewise, the rapier fighters will also have the opportunity to compete in a series of tournaments to determine which are the finest in the land. While they, too, may come from the barony or far away lands, the victors will be known as the Atenveldt Company of Duelists, and shall be rewarded with treasures befitting their deeds. They will also be required to fight for the honor of another, and the victor will earn additional treasure for that person. As with the Paladin, Duelists may enter subsequent contests to display their skills and earn additional trophies, but the highest placing victor not already recognized as a Duelist will be added to the company.

The archery fields in Atenveldt are rich with skillful and honorable shooters. They, too, deserve a place of honor under the Aten sun and will therefore compete in monthly traditional shoots. The winners of these contests will be known as Atenveldt Huntsmen. Additional information will be shared with the populace as the details are arranged.

The Song of Roland commemorates the deeds of Charlemagne's Twelve. The Baron and Baroness find it fitting that Atenveldt's contests be chronicled by our bards for all the world to hear. Thus, they will also be sponsoring a competition each month to recognize the storytellers of the barony, but these artists will have a month to work on their creations. The Baron and Baroness shall choose the winner as they see fit, but may elect to consult with others at their discretion. The works shall be printed in the following Palm Prints. Works may be epic poetry, songs or stories. As the composers and presenters of such tales were known in the days of the Vikings, so shall these victors be known as Atenveldt Skalds.

Our fine fighters should also be known to the populace who gathers to see their brave deeds. As well all know, a great herald lends excitement and pageantry to our contests, and yet we offer them limited opportunities to be in the spotlight themselves. This will also be rectified by a series of 12 contests open to all who wish to lend their voices. A panel of judges will be observing them at each tournament to identify the most golden of voices! The winners shall be known, as in the English courts, as Atenveldt Officers of Arms.

We ask that you join us in a celebration of some of the skills of our good people. The first tournament will be held in conjunction with Atenveldt Anniversary. There will be no office or responsibilities associated with any of these competitions, but the bragging rights will be generous! Please come and throw your own hats into the ring for your particular skills so that all may know who are the finest in the land.

Nudd and Emelyn

Here's what's happening with Barony of Atenveldt fighter practice this summer.

As usual, Parks Department is closing for maintenance for the summer all but one lighted field in each of their districts. This summer, the open field in our district is at Coronado Park, a block north of McDowell between 12th St and 13th st. We asked for Wednesday nights, but it turns out Coronado gets flood irrigated every other Wednesday, so rather than practice only every two weeks for the summer, we settled for Tuesdays. So, starting in June and continuing through August, BofA practice will be at Coronado Park, Tuesday nights, 8-10 pm.

Upcoming Events

Too Darn Hot

August 11 – August 13

Come and join us in the cool pines as we kick off their excellencies first event as Baron and Baroness. With the changing of Ered Sul's B&B also comes time to change champions of Hardsuit, Standard Bearer, Archery, Rapier, and Bard.

There will be plenty of festivities going on for this event. Not only will new champions be chosen this event, we will also be having a chili cook off, an A&S competition, and a trades area. What is the trades area? Glad you asked. During times of old, many travelers would take their goods and use them as currency and trade them for other goods. So bring any unwanted items or things you have too much of and see what you would like to trade them for.

Saturday night Clan BearWolf will be hosting their 10 year anniversary party. There will be songs, stories, and even a play. Join them as they celebrate their time spent in the SCA and as they pass the torch onto a new chieftain.

Schedules of tourneys will be listed soon.

Adult fee for the weekend is $15 with a $5 member discount, there is no day-trip price. Youth 17 and under have no entrance fee. This is a primitive site. Please bring your own water for the weekend.

There will be porta potties and a grey water tank for disposal. We will be going around after the event to haul trash. The site is wet.
