BARONIAL MISSIVE

SunDragon!

The last few weeks have been busy as we have prepared our Aten Army. We also saw the re-ignition of the flame of heroism at Heroes of the Silent Angels. On that glorious day, the kingdom raised over $6500 to be donated to the International Rett Syndrome Foundation. This event, & the worthy cause it supports, is a favorite of ours & of the Crown. Next year we want to make it even more successful!

At Central War Practice, several of our populace members were recognized by the Crown for their accomplishments & service. (Please see pages 2-3) In the coming months we expect to see more of our baronial heroes emerge.

Life's limitations & kingdom events have significantly curtailed Our regularly scheduled activities. On February 10th, at 3PM We will be holding baronial court! We will also be hosting Grub & Garb. Since February is the month when St Valentine is honored, the theme for Grub & Garb will be: Food that inspires romance. There will also be hard suit & rapier tourneys (to be announced).

It is our desire to show our baronial pride at large events, & to that end, We would like be able to surround the baronial encampments with a wall. On February 2nd, We will be hosting a wall-making party at our home. Wall sections should be made from duck canvas (any of the baronial colors), 60" X 60" with ties on the top & bottom. Paint any period design you like on them, from personal devices, badges, household sigils, or baronial devices. For each section provided, you must also provide 1 portable hole, & 1 6-foot pole. An event page for the wall-making party is forthcoming, & will have more details for any who would like to attend.

Looking to the future, Mixed Weapons War is just beyond the horizon. We are excited about all that this event will bring. Look for the event page coming soon!

Meanwhile.... The invaders are at our doorstep! In just a matter of days we must rally to meet the Stag army & toss them from our sun-drenched lands! Ready your armor! Sharpen your swords! String your bows! Finalize your arts! Prepare to serve! We must be victorious on all battle fronts! The Cave Troll King has called us to defend Atenveldt, & SunDragon will answer!!

THE HEROES OF THE SILENT ANGELS, 1/12/19

Block Printing at Aurora's

(January 20, 2019)

Written By Lady Aurora of the Horny Horses

Block printing on Fabric! It was all the rage in the middle ages. Well, at least it was something that was done in ancient China, & later in India, but also found in parts of Europe in the medieval times. Block printing is a fabulous way to decorate your SCA attire that's different from trim or embroidery. Aurora of the Horny Horses has done several block printing projects & others in the Barony were interested in learning more about block printing on fabrics. So we held a collaboration at her home & used various types of blocks, paint, & techniques. Attendees were Aurora, Isabelle, HE Jacqueline, & Kolfina.

"Block printing is a fabulous way to decorate your SCA attire that's different from trim or embroidery."

Below: Speedball: brayer

The paints we used were a combination of paints from Jacquard and Speedball. Using the regular Tulip or fabric paints from your local craft stores are typically don't work well for block printing. The Jacquard paints require heat setting. The Speedball block printing inks do not, but the Speedball screen printing inks do. There are several techniques that we collaboratively have done. Originally when Aurora started doing it, she was using a small paint roller with which you would paint wall trim. However, this uses a lot of paint and these paints aren't cheap. So, Aurora had used a stippling sponge to apply the paint to the block. This works well if you don't have a large block to do because otherwise the paint gets dry. The technique most of us like the best was using a rubber roller to apply the paint. First you put the paint onto a piece of glass (in this case we used every bit of Aurora's Pyrex cake pans in her house), then roll it out to cover the roller. Once the roller has a consistency that looks a little like stucco, you roll it both directions on your block stamp .

(CONTINUATION)

Blocks can be purchased at craft stores or on-line. However, you may purchase a linoleum block & carve it yourself or have your favorite artist make you a custom block. This is a great option if you have a device you'd like to replicate. A recommendation, if you get a custom block is to cut the extra surfaces off so that you have less risk of getting paint on your fabric where you don't want it. Isabelle shared that she had used several large foam stamps on her tent with fleur de lis.

We primarily block printed on linen scraps, but you block print on any fabric. It's highly recommended that you test your block printing on scrap fabric of the same kind that you are using for your project.

Since you are working with fabric paint/ink, you want to be sure you have an appropriate backing or surface you are working on. Aurora covers her sewing cardboard cutting board with a flocked plastic table cloth that she doesn't mind if it gets paint on it. Isabelle brought specially made boards that have some give in them. If you attempt to press your block down on the fabric without having something with a little give behind it, your print may not come out very well. In addition, if you have a piece of clothing that is already sewn, you will need to consider putting something between the layers so that you will prevent bleed through onto sections you don't want paint.

We had a lot of fun with the colors & different blocks. There were small ones that would make great trim. The larger ones could be used as an overall pattern. We really liked how the black & gold colors popped on the black linen. We even combined the blue & the pearlescent white to have a shiny blue dragon. We had a great time playing & learning from each other.
